Hello Chili Chefs!! Thank you very much for participating and competing in the SVCF Chili Cook-Off. This event will definitely add to the fun of the festival and be an excellent way for us chili lovers to taste some different recipes and maybe even try to steal some ideas ☺ The rules and set-up are pretty straight forward. You will have the allotted 7 hours to produce the best chili possible. If you only need 3 hours to make your chili by all means only use 3. Some folks like to slow cook and braise so for you folks you may use the entire 7 hour time slot. You will be responsible for bringing all of your own cooking equipment. If you are using electrical equipment please bring an extension cord. If you have a turkey deep fryer that uses propane please feel free to bring it and use that instead. I don't mind you doing knife work (freshly chopped un-cooked ingredients) ahead of time at your house to save on time and for safety sake. I do want ALL cooking to be done at the festival grounds though Saturday. Off the top of my head these are the items I suggest you bring: 10 X 10 Pop up tent, Pop up table, cutting board, method of heating (Propane burner, hot plate, pressure cooker), large soup pot, utensils for stirring, chef knife, sanitation bucket (I will have sanitation tablets for you to dilute with water), kitchen towels/terrycloth towels, band aids (stuff happens) LOL.. ☺ Judging will take place from 3 PM-5PM. Judging will be conducted by whomever is attending the festival at the hours of 3 PM and 5 PM that day. One person one vote. Want more votes? Bring more people to the festival !!! I will inform you of the exact location where the chili cooking will be taking place at a later date. With any further questions please contact me!

Thanks much gang!
